

Our family has been the weekly target of an unending array of telemarketers that predominantly call during dinner time, and mostly by computerized calls where, after you pick up the receiver, there is blank air for a few seconds. It is incredibly annoying, bothersome and should be STOPPED WITHOUT EXCEPTION. What's worse is when these anonymous telemarketers call up, & once the phone is answered, they hang up without so much as a word, let alone, an apology. I strongly urge the FCC to regulate telemarketing calls in the strongest possible ways.
